Alamo Forest Products' roots reach back to San Antonio, Texas circa 1893 with the founding of the Vaughan Lumber Company. Entrepreneur George C. Vaughan and two partners, recognizing the difficulty mill owners were experiencing in marketing their inventories, established their new company with the intent to seek purchase agreements with various area sawmills., committing to each mill's entire annual production then, as wholesalers, marketing this production to retailers throughout Texas. The success of this arrangement, a boon to both mill owners and lumber dealers, quickly resulted in positioning the Vaughan Lumber Company as the premier source for exceptional lumber products across the state. While maintaining its headquarters in San Antonio (where they remain today), with growth, numerous regional sales offices were quickly added expanding service from Chicago, Illinois south to Mexico's capital city.

Throughout the 20th Century, the Vaughan Lumber Company continued to prosper and evolve. The partnership incorporated and changed its name to Geo. C. Vaughan & Sons, then later to Vaughan & Sons, Inc. Initially, Alamo Forest Products was the lumber division of Vaughan & Sons which at various times, was involved in distribution as well as the millwork, aluminum window and kitchen cabinet manufacturing within the greater company. Alamo Forest Products was also in the forefront in the manufacture of wood trusses and wall components.

As a division of Vaughan & Sons, Alamo Forest Products today is a wholesale distribution company with branches in Harlingen, Houston, San Antonio, and Tyler, TX, dealing in products sold in the building materials distribution channel. Product lines include lumber and panels, engineered wood products, foundation steel products, and wire products used in the farm and ranch industry. Customers include retail building material dealers, truss and component manufacturers, farm and ranch stores, other manufacturers and distributors, home centers, and selected large industrial contractors. As a matter of policy the company does not sell to the general public or homebuilder. Alamo Forest Products is largely owned and managed by the descendants of George C. Vaughan.
